ANDREAS VESALIUS

The Fabric of the Human Body

An Annotated Translation of the 1543 and 1555 Editions with Vesalius’ Own Notes for a Never Published Third Edition

DANIEL H. GARRISON
MALCOLM H. HAST

The Fabric of the Human Body, an annotated translation of Andreas Vesalius’ De humani corporis fabrica, will be published by Karger Publishers in autumn 2013. The new book recreates the masterpiece of science and art for the first time in a way that is understandable to 21st century readers who do not have any knowledge of Latin.

The texts of both the 1543 and the 1555 editions have been translated with the utmost care by Northwestern University Professors Emeritus Daniel H. Garrison and Malcolm H. Hast, a task they completed in over 20 years of painstaking and dedicated work.

Annotations give the reader keen insight into just how innovative De humani corporis fabrica was, and high-resolution digital scans of the almost 300 woodcuts provide the images with a sharpness they never had before.

- First English translation of the 1543 and 1555 editions with detailed annotations and added notes for a never published third edition – all in one publication
- Different colors allow easy identification of notes specifically relevant to the 1543 and 1555 editions
- A modern design and high-resolution digital scans make The Fabric of the Human Body accessible to every scholar, library, and book lover
- Nomina Anatomica and Terminologia Anatomica are included for the first time, clearly providing Vesalius’ description with the appropriate modern medical terminology.
- With prefaces by the translators and extensive introductions by medical historian Vivian Nutton and Nancy Siraisi
